technology or by having the smartest CEO—or CIO. Companies must be flat, fast organizations, with even the newest employees engaged in helping the company succeed. Employees given the chance to share in the invention of their companies—given a voice in a pluralistic process—will embrace the institutional change necessary for leading
